

Fawcett asks Prospective Parliamentary Candidate's to pledge their support to women

As part of our current election campaign 'What About Women?' Fawcett contacted Prospective Parliamentary Candidate's (PPC's) from around the country to ask them, if elected as an MP in the upcoming election, will they support action on women's inequality in their constituency and the wider UK. Specifically we asked them if they would:

1. Support local and national action to tackle the gender pay gap? (yes/no)
2. Increase support services for women victims of rape as well as address the low level of rapes that end in a conviction? (yes/no)
3. Work with Fawcett and others to ensure that both local and national deficit cutting proposals are assessed in terms of how they would impact on women – both regarding access to public services and women's income's? (yes/no)

The results are below and divided as follows:

PPC's who said yes to all questions
PPC's who said no to all questions
PPC's who gave a mixed response
PPC's who expressed their support
